PENN STATE ICONS

The Nittany Lion Shrine

Located on the corner of Curtin Rd. and Borrows Rd. across from Rec Hall on the west side of campus. The statue of the Penn State mascot was a gift from the Class of 1940 and is sculpted from Indiana limestone. It is tradition for students at Penn State to get their picture taken on the Lion during their first day as a freshman and then again in their cap and gown on graduation day.

The Penn State "Berkey" Creamery

The Berkey Creamery is the largest university creamery in the nation. Each year approximately 4.5 million pounds of milk pass through the Creamery's stainless steel holding tanks. About half comes from a 225-cow herd at the University's Dairy Production Research Center.

Getting ice cream at the Creamery has been a tradition since 1896. On football weekends salespeople dip several thousands of cones, and on a summer day, lines extend out the doors. Creamery ice cream is so fresh that only four days, on the average, elapse between the cow and your newly dipped cone. The most popular flavor is "Peachy Paterno" named after Penn State's legendary football coach. Visitors are advised not to miss this important stop.

JoePa's Statue

Located outside the nation's largest college football structure, Beaver Stadium, is a 7 foot, 1000 pound bronze statue of Penn State's finest philanthropist, educator, humanitarian and coach Joseph Vincent Paterno (better known as JoePa). The statue is surrounded by plaques commemorating each of JoePa's record 42 seasons as head coach of Penn State. The statue can be found on the east side of the stadium, directly across from Medlar (baseball) Field on Porter Rd.

The HUB Robeson Center

The HUB is Penn State's famous student center located in the heart of campus. Existing since 1953 and expanded and remodeled in 1997 the 4-floor building contains eateries, coffee shops, a bank and travel agency, multiple large seating areas, a big-screen tv, an aquarium, study rooms, computers, a copy center, a ceramic studio, an art gallery, 3 large auditoriums and almost one hundred offices for student organizations and university departments. The HUB, open 24 hours, is the most popular meeting place and one of the most popular places for students to study.

Old Main

Originally built in 1863 and then re-built in 1930 following a devastating fire, Old Main is arguably Penn State's most famous symbol. The limestone used to build it in the 1800's was carried in part by a mule named Old Coaly (which served as PSU's unofficial mascot prior to the Nittany Lion), whose bones were subsequently preserved and are currently on display in the HUB (1st level).

Located in the center of campus the historic building houses the President's office and other administrative offices. Its bell tower now contains digital chimes that play "Hail to the Lion" on the hour. Students typically set their watches by the Old Main clock. The building is surrounded by a large lawn and can be seen well from College Ave.

The Pattee and Paterno Library

The 13th largest library in the Western Hemisphere sits on Curtin Road just down the street from the Nittany Lion statue. Joe and Sue Paterno, committed to enhancing the future of all students, raised over $14 million in the 1990's to add on to the existing Pattee Library making it one of America's finest library's with over 5 million items, 3500 maps, subject-specific floors and wings, computer labs, and a coffee shop.
